

TEAMS & PRE-WORK

1. Select an Account (as a group)

As a group, choose a strategic account that you can openly discuss and explore together and will be using during the workshop.

The groups are in the attachment – we have 7 groups in total . You will be working in your respective group to apply the principles to your selected account during the 2-day workshop.

2. Deepen the Discovery

As a group or individually (we will provide time for you to align during the workshop, if needed), please reflect and answer the below questions:

1. Identify key personas within the account
2. Understand their goals and aspirations
3. Determine what they need to do or achieve (functionally/ emotionally / socially)
4. Explore potential triggers or shifts impacting them
5. Reflect on what they may be thinking and feeling

In a nutshell - to the best of your insight and access, do a deep-dive into your selected account.

Go beyond the surface—look broadly at your customer’s environment, context, and journey.

Important: This is not about BIAL (yet). Focus on truly understanding your customer first.

What Customer-Centric Marketing Creates

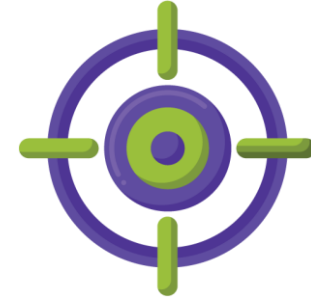

Personalization

- Simplify messaging to connect with less tech-focused audiences
- Focus on ease of adoption
- Emphasize practical, tangible benefits

Community Building

- Foster inclusivity by creating forums
- Establish user groups
- Share success stories that connect the offering with all users

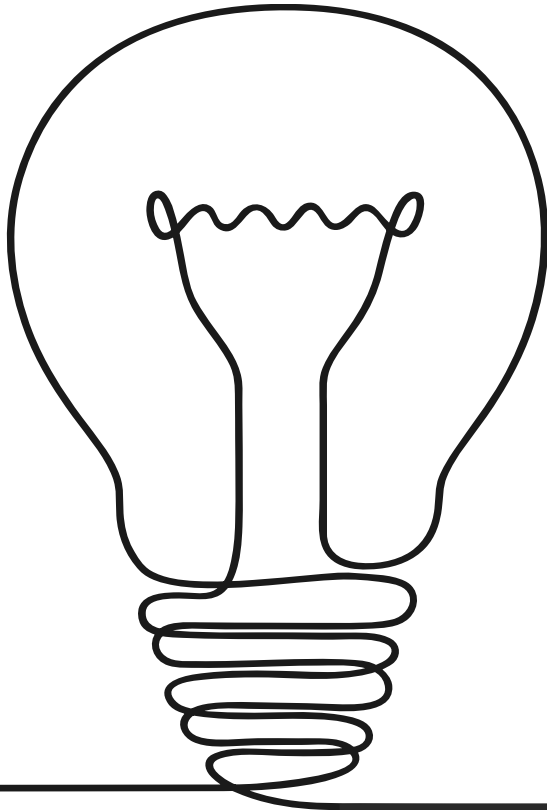

Customization

- Provide modular solutions that connect with SMEs
- Connect with non-technical departments in larger organizations

Market
Segmentation

Market Segmentation Categories

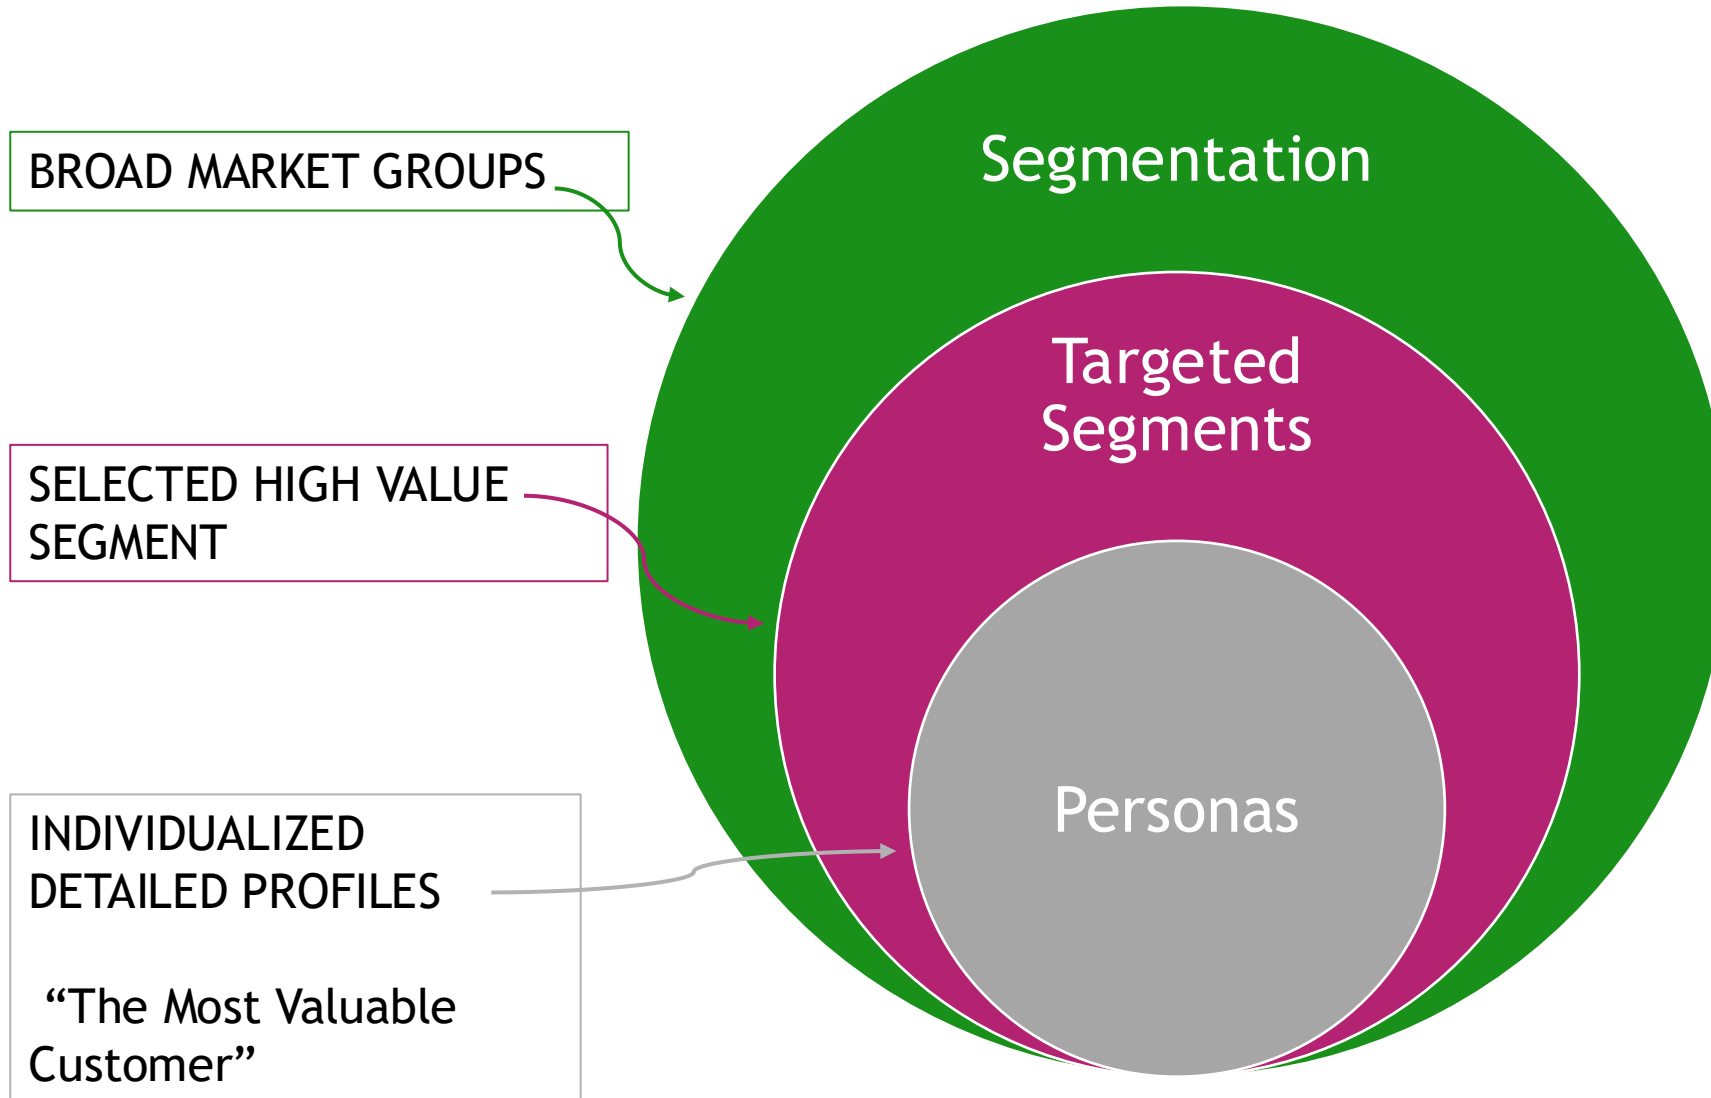

Market Attractiveness Evaluation

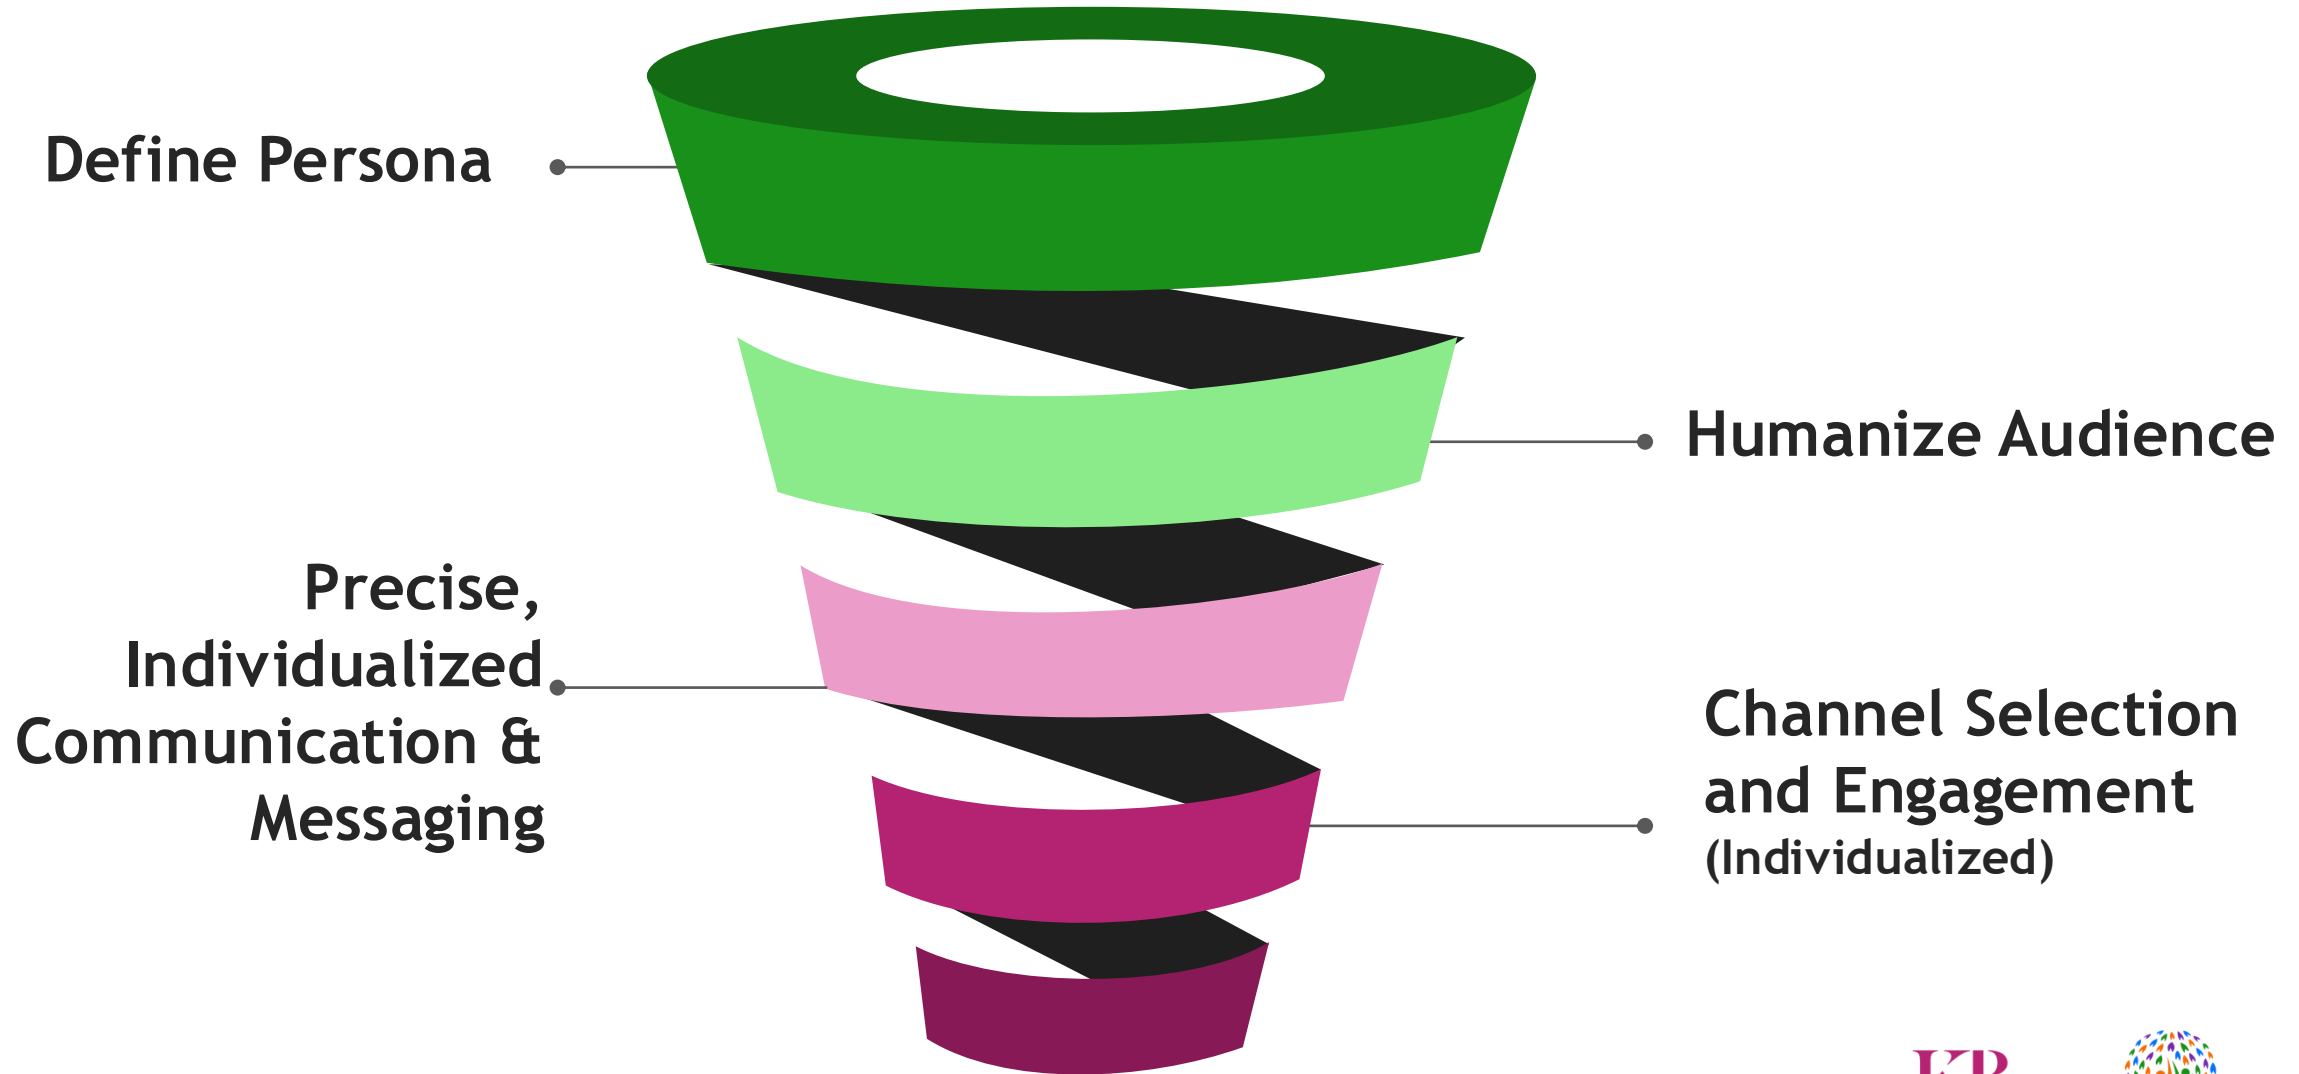

Personas to Performance

Segmentation - Targeting - Personas

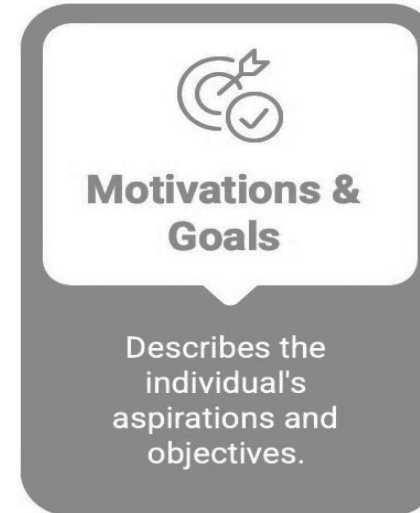

Refining Audience into Personas

Example in the health care environment

Healthcare Professional

KEY DISTINCTION

Person → An individual, real human being with unique, personal attributes.

Persona → An archetype, created from patterns and insights, representing a segment of users.

A persona is a fictional, composite profile that represents the most important traits, behaviors, and goals of a typical user or customer within a specific context. It is not an actual person, but rather a research-based synthesis that captures shared characteristics across a group of real people.

Mapping the Customer Journey - Alignment from the prework

Persona

- 1 Exchange in your teams group on your Account Personas and your pre work reflection
- 2 Capture ideas/ reflection align on your poster as you may need to come back to it in next activities
- 3 Select/ align on 1 persona ?
 - Describe your account persona profile
 - Think about their goals and aspirations?
- 4 When ready, put the persona on your poster

We will debrief and ask one of the team to present

Most Valuable
Segment - Persona
Profile

*What does your customer feel / think
at each point of the customer journey.*

The learning Journey : what you will experience...

Example

“Imagine a remote hemodynamic monitoring solution that enables early detection of fluid overload in high-risk heart failure patients.”

- Implantable Hemodynamic Monitoring Device for Heart Failure.
 - An implantable sensor that:
 - Monitors pulmonary artery pressure
 - Detects fluid overload early
 - Sends remote data to clinicians
 - Enables early intervention before decompensation

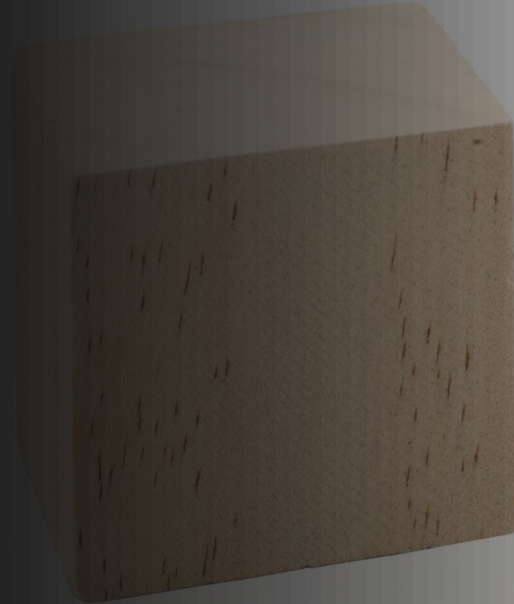

“Reducing preventable heart failure readmissions through proactive hemodynamic monitoring and structured intervention pathways.”

Personas - Managing High risk HF Populations

- CARDIOLOGY LEADER IN TERTIARY LATAM HOSPITAL
 - Accountable for 30 day readmission reduction
 - Measured on Mortality , LOS (Length of stay) and program performance
 - Influence procurement and care apthway decisions
 - Evidence driven , risk aware , operationally accountable
 - Operate within public / private reimbursement constraints

Building Exercise - The customer journey

Inspiration - Unaware

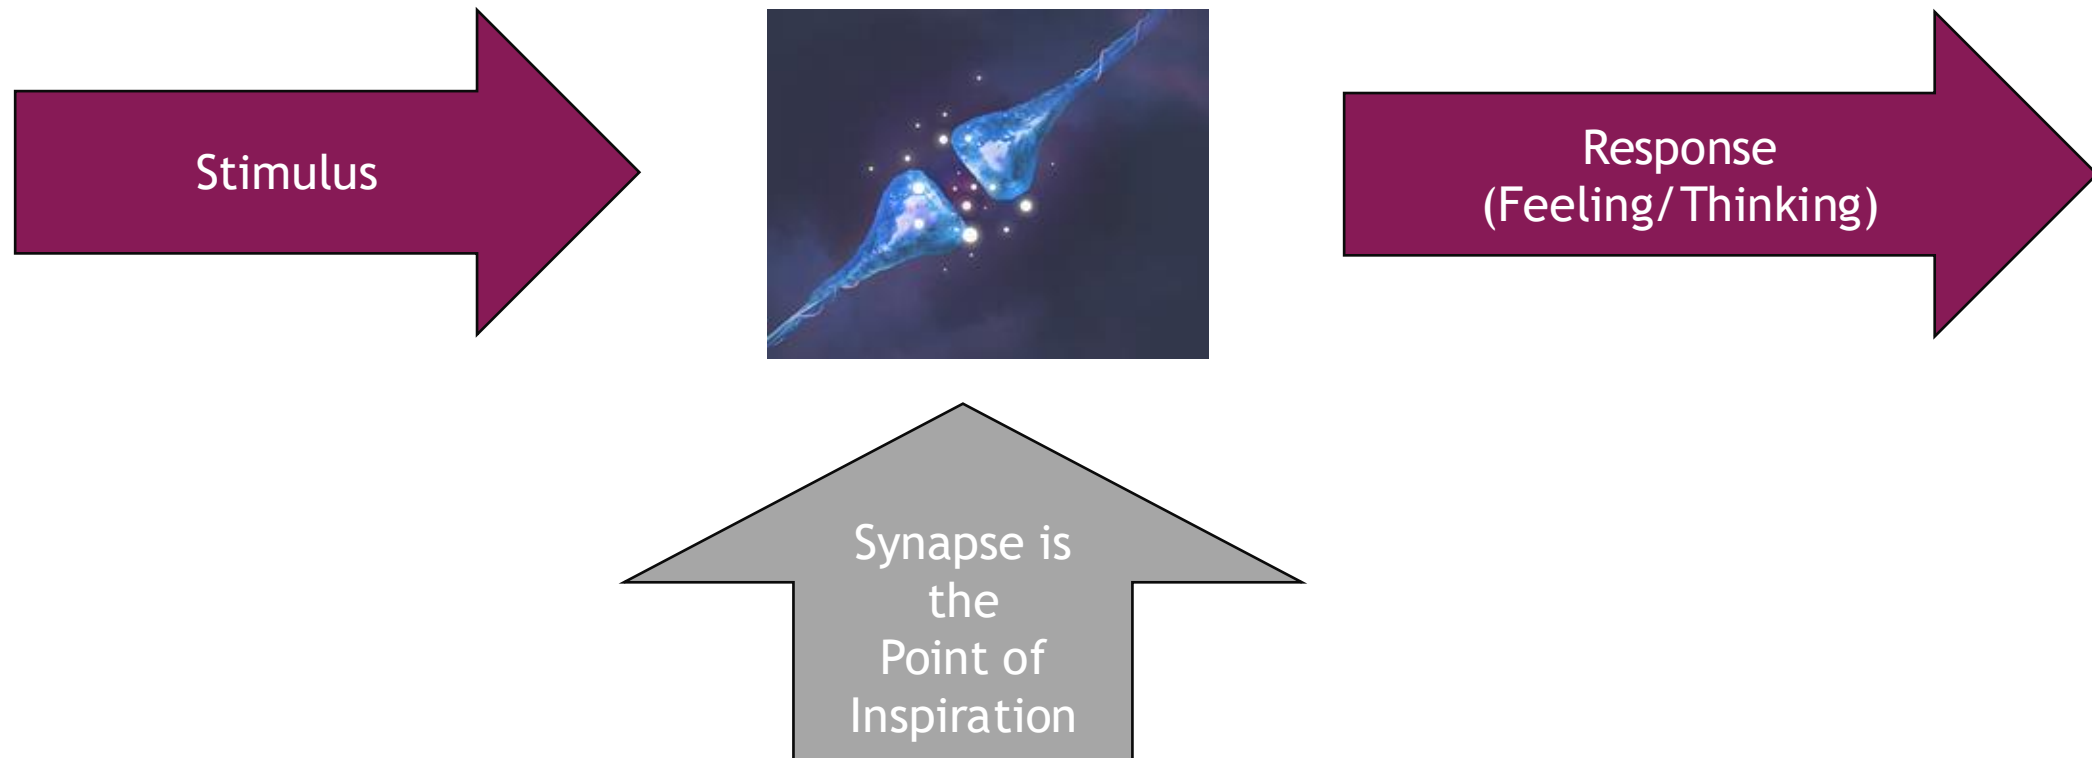

A low-angle, perspective shot of a railway track receding into the distance. The tracks are made of steel rails on wooden sleepers, set in a bed of dark gravel. Above the tracks, a complex network of overhead power lines and support poles stretches across the frame. The background is shrouded in a thick, white fog, with the silhouettes of bare trees and distant structures visible through the haze. The overall mood is quiet and atmospheric.

KATE BURDA : CEO & Founder, Kate Burda & Co.

Kate started her firm after over 28 years working with public and private companies focused on building best-of-class sales and marketing teams to accelerate and realize higher revenue potential. She has lead marketing and sales teams, and revenue management / pricing teams. Her work is focused on the "Revenue Trifecta" of sales, marketing, and revenue management distribution channels.

Kate's experience has ranged from working within; a real estate investment trust; large multi-national hospitality corporations; smaller franchise groups within hospitality; and commercial, retail, and multi-family real estate. She has held senior executive positions with companies that have gone through mergers and acquisitions, bankruptcy, start-ups, and growth. Hyatt, Hilton, and Marriott are some of the companies where she has lead revenue teams.

Her talent lies in connection and clarity. Connecting teams to ideas and their higher-performance self and creating strategies that have the clarity to be easily executed and mobilized to an outcome.

She is apart of Cornell Hospitality Research think tank and sits on the board of Boutique and Luxury Lodging Association. You can also find her teaching at Purdue University on Price Modeling, Revenue Management, and Distribution systems.

Kate received her MBA from the University of Colorado and completed her BA from the University of Wisconsin-Stout. She and her husband, Bob, live in Dallas, where he has pleasure of being the Associate Commissioner at the Big 12 Conference. If she is not thinking about revenue efficacy, you can find her traveling and exploring.

UNDERSTANDING THE POINT OF INSPIRATION: YOUR FOCUS CUSTOMER AND THE PERSONA

Understanding the Customer Persona

“Deeper than just demographics and psychographics”

- Who are they
- Goals and aspirations
- Jobs to be done (functional, emotional, social)

Ex: Fractional Chief Marketing Officers

- Left large executive job to gain more flexibility
- Less complex lifestyle, flexibility in when and where they work
- Bring meaningful and high-level marketing to mid-size organizations.
- Focused on value of marketing, as well as impacting their customer's business

Point of Inspiration

“they don't know what they don't know. But there has to be something out there.”

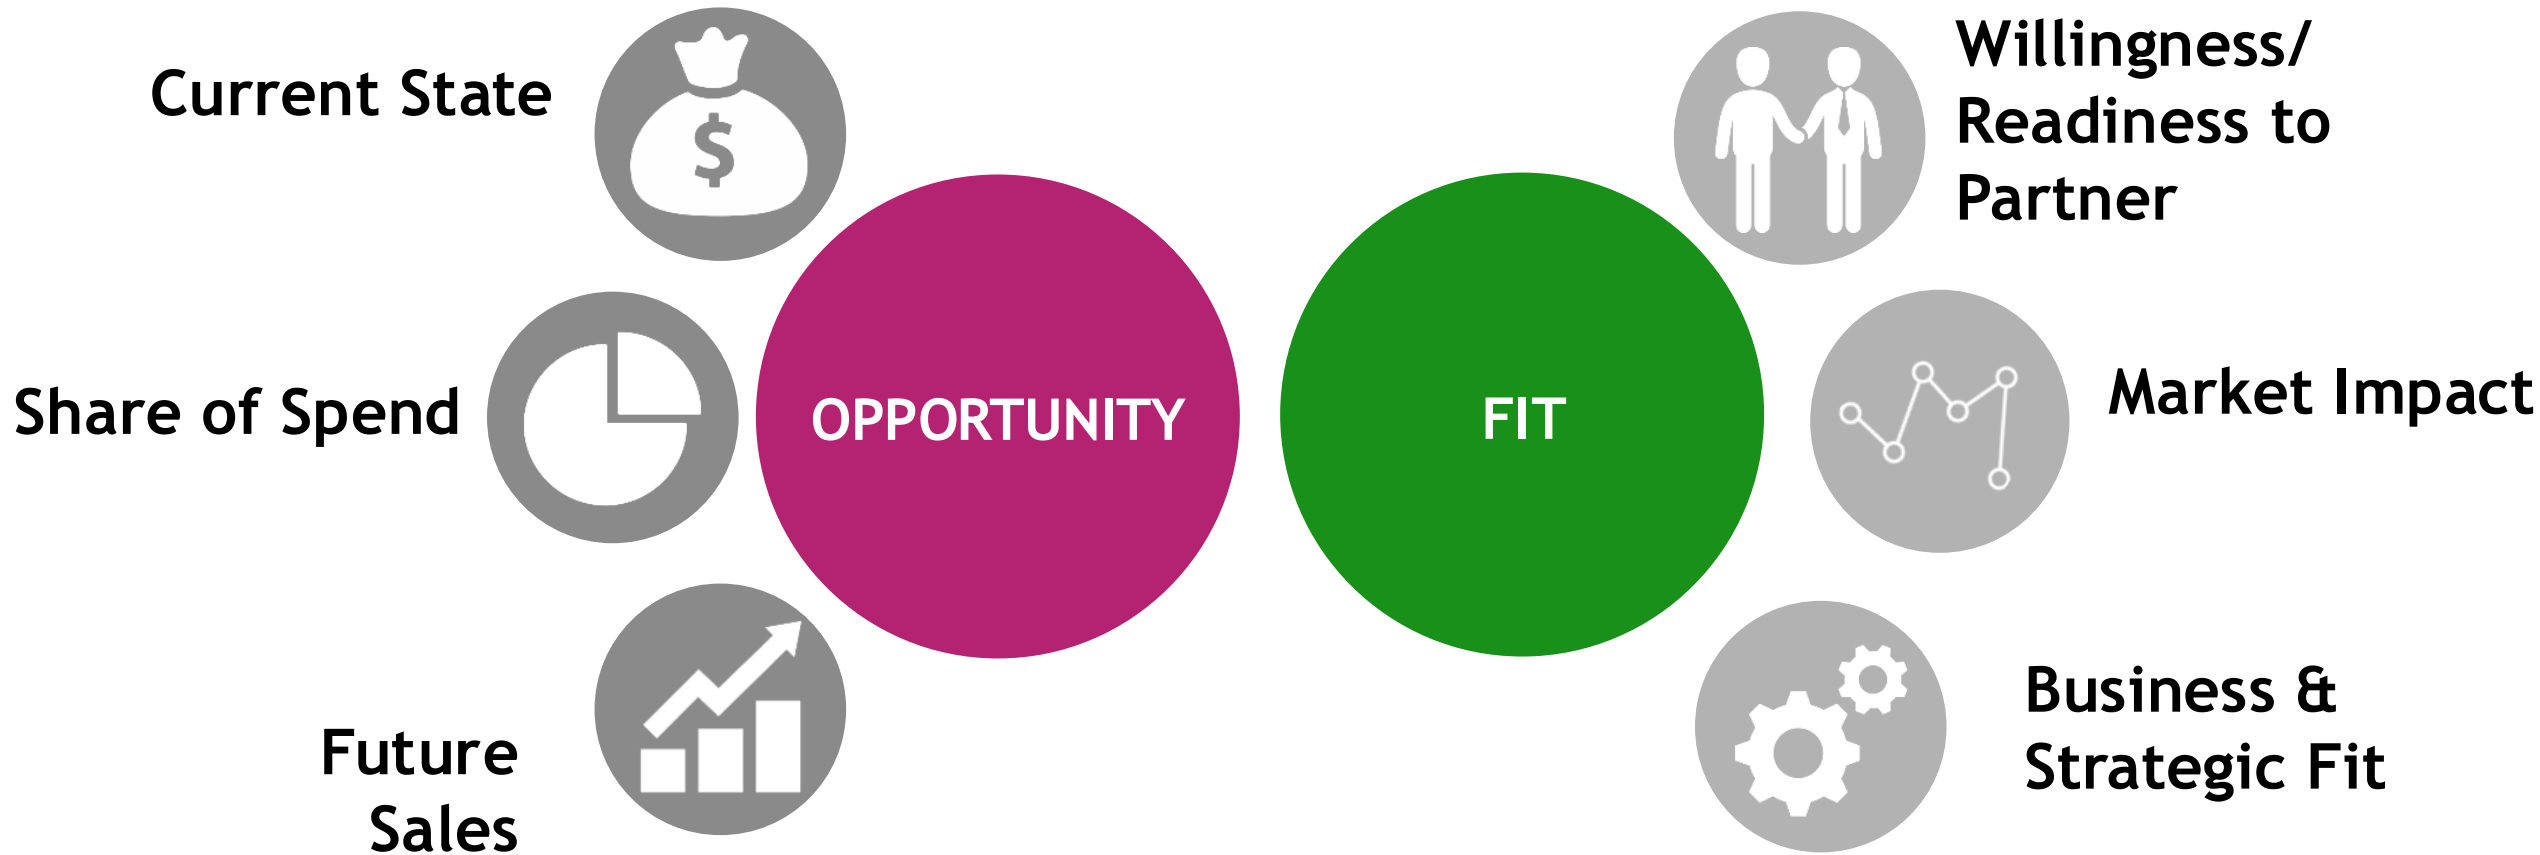

- List the what could be taking place that gets them from Unaware to Informed aware of the situation, but may not be aware of the product”*

Ex: Point of Inspiration

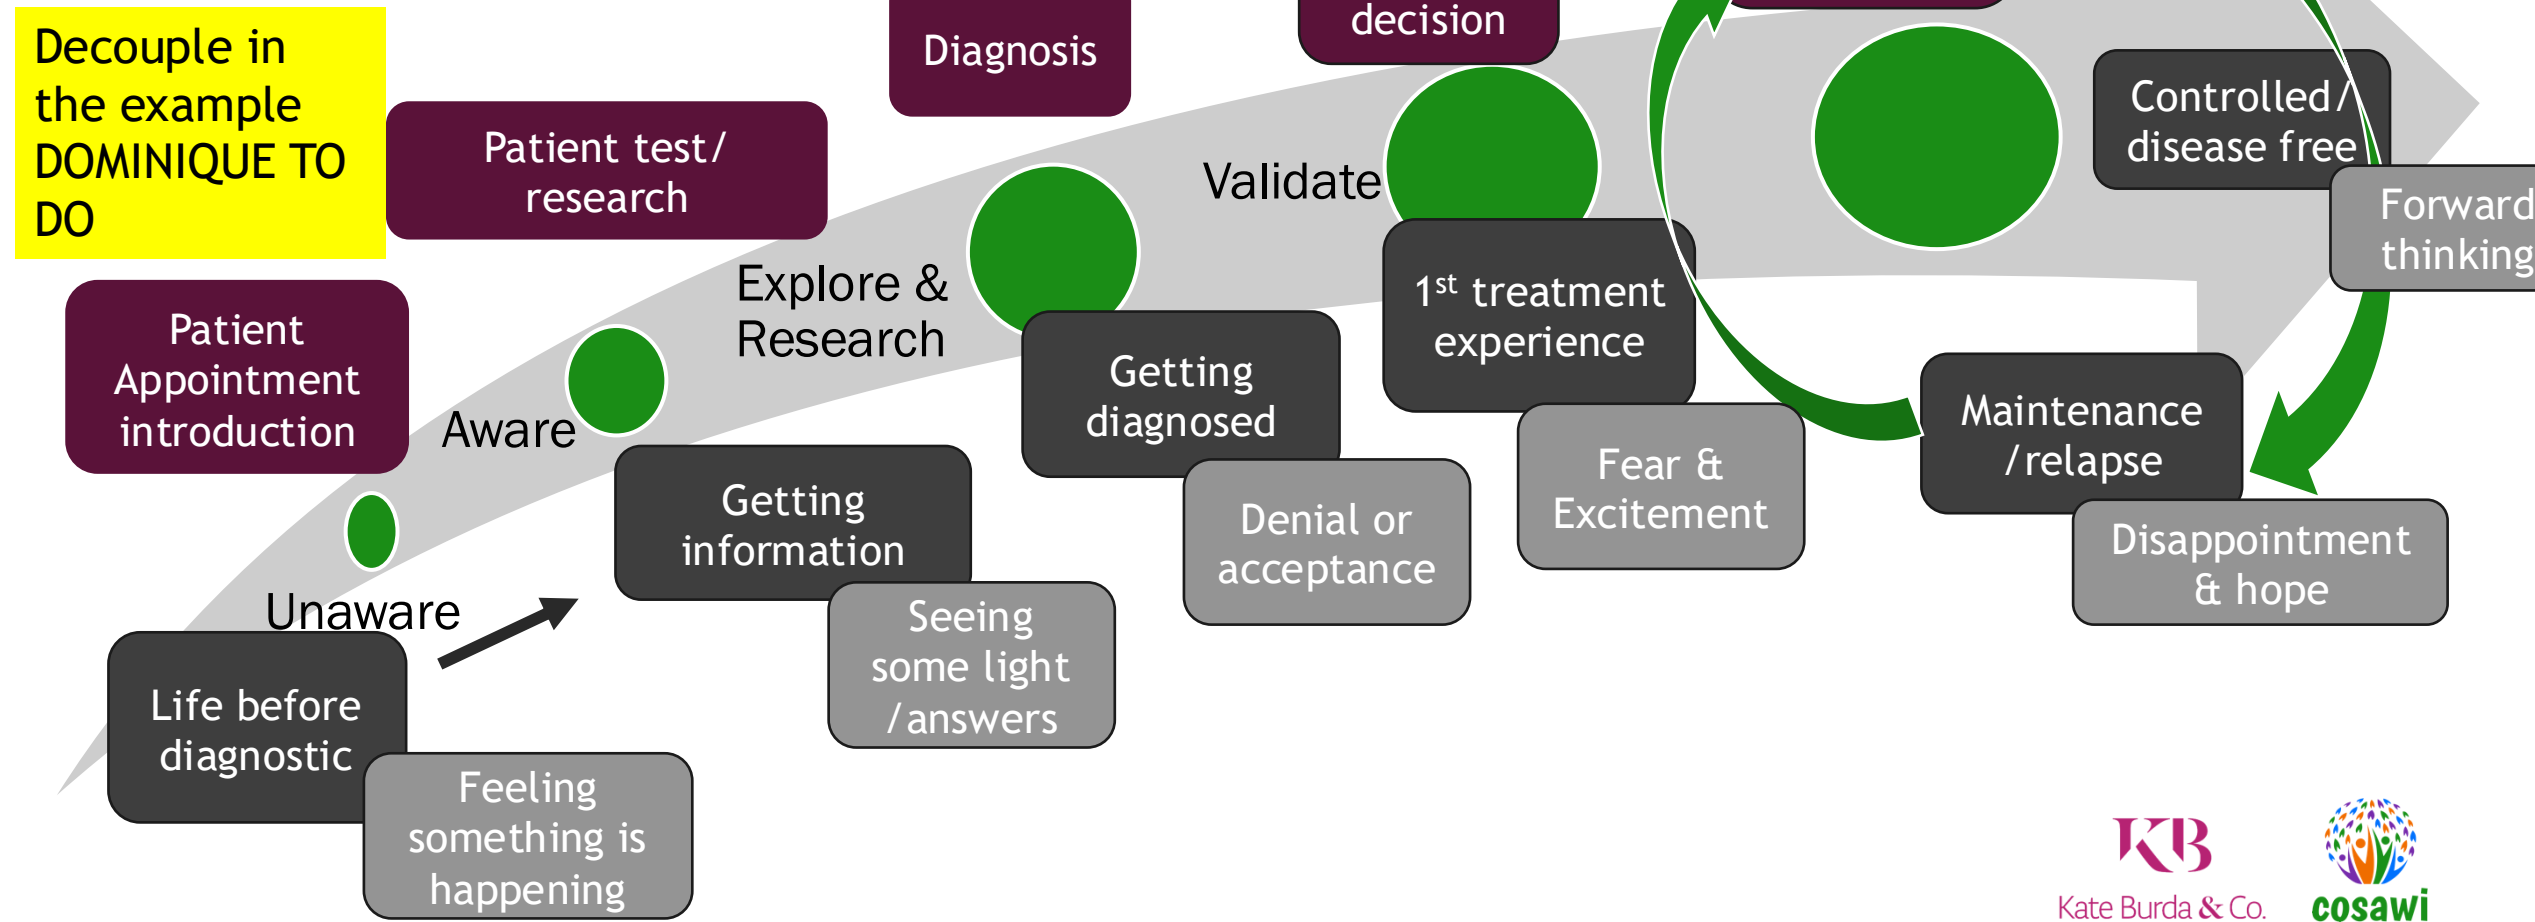

- Getting more and more work, getting more and more complex and less flexible.
- How do I scale, but still be agile
- Tired, Frustration,
- Debating on hiring people into the firm.

Most Valuable Customer :

Workbook activity

- A. Newlyweds
- B. Empty Nesters

Connecting with SAM Account Planing	Change in environment that triggers new needs (THEM)				Value BIAL can Bring (US - FIT -PROOF)
	Helpful Reminders	What is happening in their world that is bringing to light a shift in their approach, work, or situation that is germinating (trigger point, infection point)	They are aware of their situation, they but they may not know or understand the ripple effect of their new state.	They are starting to explore options, educate themselves, they start hearing, seeing things they haven't before. Understanding where they go for information, understanding how they are influenced can jump start how you understand them.	They are aware of your product and your competitors. They still exploring and researching, but now in a different way than before.	They could be weigh options, offerings, price, customer service, reason to believe.	Decision point- this could mean decision to bring to others for vetting, negotiating price, asking for a options.	They move from prospect to customer to fan.
Most Valuable Segment - Persona Profile	What does your customer feel / think at each point of the customer journey.
1 Customer Focus	What is the Customer Focus; What do they care about, what are business objectives are they trying to achieve at this point of the journey.

Step 1: A walk through customer-centricity:

- Think about your most profitable customer.
- Within each step think about what they are thinking about, what is their mindset, what are they doing? Do not think about your product that will come organically.
- Keep your thinking in this current step, don't think ahead.
- Add in what they are focused on “Customer Focus” or Care about
